Who we are

CeLIM (Centro Laici Italiani per le Missioni), was born in 1954. It is a non-governmental organization recognized by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the European Union.

It is a part of the federation FOCSIV and CoLomba (Cooperazione Lombardia). The main objective of CeLIM is to help communities' development, transferring professional and economic skills with interventions of limited duration. CeLIM develops cooperation projects both sending volunteers abroad and working in Italy through activities of global citizenship education.

The organization works in Africa and the Balkans, involving international volunteers and collaborating with local agencies and staff managing projects of development cooperation across a number of fields: educational, social and healthcare, energy and microcredit.

What We Do

According to CeLIM's approach, global citizenship education aims to develop the awareness of each person on their role within the community in relation to behavioural patterns, consumption and action, so that the new generations are the future actors of good practice.

CeLIM perseveres in the belief that education and training are fundamental elements of citizenship and democracy, equality and freedom. For this reason CeLIM is committed to the creation of schools and vocational training centers in places where these services and facilities are lacking or are insufficient, in countries where young people need the right to education and the future to be available to them.

For the same reason, also in Italy CeLIM organizes training courses for migrants, awareness-raising open events to involve all citizens and, for over 20 years, manages activities of global citizenship education for schools of all levels, dealing with themes of interculturality through participatory courses and workshops.
